A Canadian Farm on Easy Terms

Do you wish to possess your own Farm Home and secure permanent income, so that you have a substantial surplus for comfortable living?

The new plan of the Canadian Pacific Railway makes possible the realization of your dream.
The Canadian Pacific Railway will cross large blocks of land in Western Canada whose virgin soil possibilities are immeasurable areas of fertile or shalyed park-lands—where settlers of a few years ago have found profit and comfort.

The Canadian Pacific Railway now offers you a Farm Home in Western Canada on a new Lease-Purchase Plan of "Easy Payment."
In this extraordinary plan, which makes it possible to own a farm home without taking all his profits to meet his land payments and will enable him to give his family the comforts and enjoyment of life, the down payment will be $100 and the annual payments, commencing at the end of the second year, will be $125.00. At the end of 25 years the settler will get clear title to the land—free of all debts.
He wishes to pay sooner, which is his privilege.
These are moderate and there are no other conditions, the fullest particulars, plans, illustrations or personal efforts. Good markets, modern schools, roads, churches, amenities make farm life in Western Canada desirable and attractive. This offer applies to the United States, Canada, and the new farm offer. For full information regarding this plan, write, the
R. M. THORNTON, Secy. of Colonization,
Box 5, Canadian Pacific Railway Bldg.,

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

Describing the actions of her lodger at Bow, an East Ham woman said: "I tried politeness with her, and lost two teeth for my pains."

British Film Productions, a firm which has recently started importing British cinema films, gave notice that the British naval epic, Zebrugge, has arrived in Singapore. This film holds the unique distinction, so far, of being the only one which has been patronised by their Majesties the King and Queen. It is likely the film may come to Hongkong.

A woman of yesterday was travelling by Tube the other day and noticed that a modern girl in the uniform of her kind was looking at her a good deal. As the girl was about to leave the car she came across and said, "You must have thought me jolly rude to stare at you so much, but I simply couldn't help it, you look so charming." So there are modern girls who can appreciate their elders still.

At least two questions of Imperial concern appear on the notice paper of the Legislative Assembly, Singapore, and are due to be answered on the 25th of this month. One member desires to know whether cigarette smoking is allowed in Government offices, another demands: "Is Government aware of the fact that Muslim watercarriers are generally supplied with tin cans which soon become dirty and insanitary?"

A strong movement has begun in Paris to obtain the closing of the theatres on one day a week. Many of the managers and actors are in favour of the proposal. At present there is absolutely no day of repose. Indeed, the week-end is worse than the rest of the week, as there are matinees, as well as evening performances, both on Saturday and Sunday. The strain is considerable, and the personnel of the theatre complains. It is not at the moment practical to attempt to close the theatres on Sundays, for it is then that the largest attendances are shown. But, at any rate, a weekly rest day might be arranged for Mondays, when comparatively little business is done, according to the box-office returns.

There was a nit return of notifiable diseases in the Colony for the 24 hours ended on August 13.

"I have to draw everything out of you as if I were a dentist."—Judge Parfitt to a Clerkenwell witness.

Messrs. Carroll Bros. have received a cable from Singapore advising that rubber is now $1.25 per lb. and that the Bukit Timah Rubber Estates, Ltd., have declared a 4 per cent. interim dividend.

'Reduction of the Japanese Army by four divisions, together with the decrease last year, has cut its numerical strength one-third, said Count Michimasa Soyesima, member of the House of Peers and graduate of Cambridge University, England, in his initial address before the Institute of Politics under the Norman Wait Harris Foundation at the University of Chicago.

The increased popularity of "soccer" in America is said to be causing great concern in Great Britain since some of the more fortunate clubs can offer Britain's stars large salaries to induce them to play in the U.S.A. Most of all the American Soccer League Clubs have scouts across the water and word is sent over to them as soon as a player is available and willing to go.

One of the most interesting historical documents of Italy's struggle to free itself from foreign rulers, has been taken out of the hands of private collectors and purchased on behalf of the Roman Museum of the "Risorgimento" through the personal intercession of Benito Mussolini. The document is the protest made July 4, 1849, by the Roman Constituent Assembly "before Italy, before France and before the whole world" against the violent invasion of its headquarters in the Capitol hill. It bears the autographed signatures of nearly all the members of the Assembly from Garibaldi to Mazzini.

At a school near Birmingham the children were told to write a composition on Sir Walter Raleigh. One child wrote: "It was a very muddy day, and Sir Walter Raleigh put his cloak on the ground for Queen Elizabeth to walk on. As she stepped into her carriage she said, 'I'm afraid I have dirtied your cloak, Raleigh.' He picked it up and said, 'Dieu et mon droit,' which means, 'My God, you have.'"

Leon Trotsky is now a frequent contributor to the newspapers. Two long extracts from his new book, "Whither Goes England?" have been printed in Pravda; and he has also published an article on the Shanghai riots. The extracts from his book uphold the most orthodox Communist revolutionary ideas against the evolutionary and moderate arguments of Premier Baldwin and Ramsay MacDonald. Mr. Trotsky is chiefly concerned with attempting to prove that progress, even in England, has largely come about as a result of revolutionary violence. In his article on Shanghai he rejects the idea that the disturbances in that city arose out of Communist propaganda and argues that the cruelty and tyranny of the foreign agents in China constitute the best method of Communist agitation.

Twenty-four foreign nations were represented at the ninth International Prison Congress, held at the Imperial Institute, South Kensington, from August 4 to 10, while there were representatives from India, South Africa, and New Zealand, and 14 British Colonies. On August 3 a reception was given by the Government at Lancaster House to all members of congress, who were received by the Home Secretary, Sir W. Joynson-Hicks, and Lady Joynson-Hicks. The congress was opened on the following day by the Home Secretary, after which the president, Sir Evelyn Ruggles-Brise, delivered his inaugural address. A novel feature of the congress was four addresses which the Lord Chancellor, the Earl of Oxford and Asquith, Lord Haldane, and the Lord Chief Justice delivered.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

Professor Gordon Harrower, M.B., Ch.B. (Hons), of Glasgow University, Professor of Anatomy at the College of Medicine, Singapore, has been awarded the degree of Doctor of Science of Edinburgh University for the excellence of his Thesis, entitled Contributions to the Craniology of the Tamil and Chinese.

Mr. Lott, manager, Whiteaway, Laidlaw and Co., Taiping, who was recently severely injured as a result of a fall from a motorcycle, was removed over a week ago to Penang. Last Sunday he was examined by X-Ray. It has been decided to send Mr. Lott home and he will be sailing on or about the 26th instant.

Owing to the unrest in China, 20 priests of the American Maryknoll Mission at Yung Keng, in the Province of Canton, had to leave the mission, and on June 20 last they arrived at Manila by the Empress of Russia. Amongst the refugees was Father Bertie Ashness, second son of Mrs. Clementine Ashness of Malacca, who in December last was in Malacca spending Christmas with his mother, and sailed from Singapore at the beginning of the year to join his mission in Canton.

J. M. Elizalde, President of the Casino Español, Manila, will give a dinner in honour of Consul-General Potous on Sunday. The dinner will celebrate the fortieth anniversary of Mr. Potous's entrance into the Consular Service of Spain. The Spanish community of Manila also will give a despedida banquet early next month in honour of Don Juan Potous. Señor Potous will sail on September 14. Mr. Elizalde does not expect to see him again, as he is leaving for Spain, and assigning him to his post, which will be Manila. He expressed himself as having enjoyed his stay in Manila very much, and said he was sure to return to Manila in the near future.

The Rev. Walter Weston, well known for his journeys in the Japanese Alps has been re-elected a member of the Council of the Royal Geographical Society, London.

The announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Fanny Eva Shellabear, of Malacca, daughter of the Rev. W. G. Shellabear, D.D., and the late Mrs. W. G. Shellabear, to the Rev. Robert A. Bladell, Principal of the Anglo-Chinese School, Ipoh.

An armed burglar broke into the home of Mr. Stephen G. Adis, 3,877 Sagiyama, Negishi-machi, Yokohama, and was searching the house when Mr. Adis and his brother awoke. They gave an alarm immediately and the intruder ran away, taking with him a purse containing only a few yen, all that he had had time to pick up. Mr. Adis is employed by Messrs. Andrews and George Company of Tokyo.

Cecil Parkin, the humorist and at times 'enfant terrible' of the cricket world, has burst into print once more. His latest effort, "Parkin Again," is dedicated to Sutcliffe and Hobbs (not forgetting Tate), and is an interesting concoction of poetry (sic) and prose. Here is a sample of the former:

A batsman there was named Hobbs,
Who wasn't addicted to blots;
He knew all the cricket,
And he made the batsmen blots.

His Imperial Highness Prince Chichibu paid a visit to the House of Commons on the 11th inst. The prince was welcomed by Mr. Stanley Baldwin, the Prime Minister, and by Mr. Andrew Bonar Law, the Secretary of the House of Commons. The prince was accompanied by Mr. H. H. Kimmage, the Irish Minister, and by Mr. J. M. B. Murphy, the Irish Minister. The prince was accompanied by Mr. H. H. Kimmage, the Irish Minister, and by Mr. J. M. B. Murphy, the Irish Minister.

Mr. J. Russell Kennedy, who has been seriously ill of pneumonia, is recuperating at Karuzawa.

Mr. Cyril Champkin, formerly acting Commissioner of Boy Scouts, Hongkong, of the P. & O. Banking Corporation, Shanghai, has undertaken duties of Commissioner, Shanghai Branch, during the absence on short leave of Mr. F. C. Millington.

The King has given permission for the wearing of the insignia of the following decorations:—Mr. Cecil Bedell Follett, Police Colonel in the Bangkok Gendarmerie.—Third Class of the Order of the Crown of Siam, conferred on him by the King of Siam in recognition of valuable services.

Patsy Gallagher, of the famous Glasgow Celtic Football Club, has been playing in New York. Many tempting offers have been made him to remain in America, but he says that the game has not reached the stage for him to consider such a change at this time although it has been intimated in certain quarters that he might consider going to America next year.

He (Huxley) did not suffer fools gladly, and he was much pestered by them all his life. Yet there are compensations even in this, for, as he exclaimed, "Of the few innocent pleasures left to men—poet middle life, the jamming common sense down the throats of fools is perhaps the best."—Leonard Huxley, in the Centenary Commemoration of his Father's Supplement to "Nature," May 9.

On his (Huxley's) lack of orthodoxy, according to a story of youth, domestic experience which he told his wife, he was once rebuked so loudly as in the early part of his married life by an "immoderate" look. After Mrs. Huxley had been in vain to "bludge" the look from the kitchen door, Huxley decided to go to the kitchen, and with full knowledge of "masculine" supremacy, to "bludge" her up and go to the kitchen, and with full knowledge of "masculine" supremacy, to "bludge" her up and go to the kitchen.

SQUALID DRAMA.

ECHO OF FAMOUS SCOTS CASE.

MRS. STIRLING DEAD.

News has been received in London by her trustees of the death in Washington of Lady George Cholmondeley, who, as Miss Clare Taylor, an American actress, appeared in England and afterwards, as Mrs. Stirling, figured in the celebrated Stirling cross-petition in the Scottish courts.

The daughter of a Washington man, she first became known (says the London "Evening News") in London in "The Earl and the Girl," at the Adelphi Theatre. She married Mr. John Alexander Stirling of Kippendavie, then a subaltern in the 3rd Scots Guards, in 1904. Five years later each sued the other for divorce. Mr. Stirling cited the late Lord Northland as co-respondent, and Mrs. Stirling cited "The Beautiful Mrs. Atherton."

Mr. Stirling won his suit and Mrs. Stirling lost. Mrs. Stirling returned to the stage for a time, and played in "Our Miss Gibbs" at the Gaiety Theatre. In 1919 she married Lord George Cholmondeley, but two years later they were divorced.

A Squalid Drama.

The Stirling suit, fought in the Court of Session, lasted nearly three weeks. In his judgment Lord Guthrie made many remarkable comments, including some trenchant ones on the mode of life of the parties. These may be quoted:-

Love—The feeling between the sexes which in the absence of impediment leads to marriage.

Passion—The same passion which has made some of the most chivalrous characters in history, sacred and profane, not only guilty of misconduct, but becoming liars and murderers to boot.

Social butterflies—The case relates to selfish, idle lives, with nothing romantic. For instance, speaking about a visit to Paris, they gave the name of the Louvre, not to the great museum and gallery, but to the shop.

Mrs. Stirling, young and in good health, breakfasted in bed at eleven o'clock or at midday when living in summer in the country, her husband going regularly to business in London by the 8.30 a.m. train.

At Amberley Cottage, near Maidenhead, in the latter part of June and in July, the only useful occupation of Mr. and Mrs. Stirling, Mrs. Atherton, and Lord Northland seemed, the Judge pointed out, to have consisted on Sunday in manicuring each others' nails.

In their attitude to human life, Lord Guthrie went on, there was not much to choose between the actors in this squalid drama.

All four—Scottish laird, American ex-actress, peer's son, and divorcee—appeared to have looked upon life merely as an opportunity for having a good time, indifferent to the good opinion of self-respecting people. They treated life as a comedy, but they had made a painful and costly tragedy of it.

Golfer: "I want round this course in 85."
Friend: "Really! I didn't know it was as old as that."

FIRST FORM OF LIFE.

PLANTS IN OLDEST KNOWN ROCKS.

Proof that life existed on the earth when the oldest of known rocks were formed, is claimed by Dr. John W. Gruner of the geology department of the University of Minnesota, in "Science Service's Daily Science News Bulletin." He has shown that traces of blue-green algae, very primitive, microscopic plants, are present in rocks of the Archean age, which have hitherto been thought to be devoid of all fossil remains. In the past, indeed many geologists believed that most of these rocks "were formed by direct cooling of a molten earth, which would, of course, have meant a temperature too high for any life."

"The rocks in which the new life-traces were discovered" have in the course of ages been subjected to immense pressure, partial solution, and recrystallisation processes, to such an extent that the exact nature of the plant-remains can not be stated with certainty; but botanists at the University have no doubt that they were some kind of algae.

Student: "How long can a man live without a brain, sir?"
Professor: "Wait and see!"

WHY SOME GIRLS ARE NOT POPULAR.

There are some girls who are attractive enough in appearance yet who lack that popularity which other pretty girls enjoy. What is the cause? Simply that they unconsciously repel those with whom they speak because they are afflicted with ill-smelling breath, the result of intestinal inactivity.

Is your breath as sweet as it ought to be? If not, try Pinkettes, the dainty little laxatives and liver regulators which act so gently as nature. They ensure daily regularity, dispel sick headaches, flatulences and bilious attacks, keep the system clean, the skin fresh and clear and the breath sweet.

Your chemist sells Pinkettes, 6d. post free, 60 cents the vital, from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 60 Kingston Road, Shanghai.

We hold it wrong to bestow praise for the exercise of those virtues usually associated with commonsense or common manhood. But when the virtue of controlling one's tongue and temper in dealing with the cooler class is concerned, we feel that a little word of praise is merited. So then let us commend the action of Mr. J. P. Robinson, and Colonel Matthews as reported in yesterday's issue. These gentlemen underwent what has been a fairly common experience with most of us—an experience which shows no sign of abatement. They were subjected to the idiosyncrasy—to put it mildly—of two rich colleges who separately feared and abhorred unbecoming language. They had sufficient cause of their own to be angry, and they were

A THOUGHT FOR SUNDAY.

The average man who honestly looks at the course of his life year by year cannot fail to be struck by the frequency with which he has done "right" in spite of himself. How often he has been trapped even into drinking the foul and ignominious and too easily forgiven poison the path he has himself so willingly accepted as the only way

"Am I to understand you, ma'am, that if this bill become law and my wife had a matter of a hundred pound left her, she should have to arst her for it?"

"I was obliged to confess," says Mrs. Fawcett, "that he would have to suffer this humiliation and then I got no more signals."

The Governor sighed but acquiesced. The youngster was led in, and he embarked upon a dolorous rendering of "Poor Wandering One."

The heath, rather than the orchid, would be the flower-companion of my clime; and I would desire to wear it, not as a talisman, but as an incentive; not for any hope of luck that superstitiously clings to the white variety, but as a symbol of the moorland's freedom, as a memory of fragrant purple beauty, and as a sacrament of courage should it be worn, says a writer in an American paper.

This heath is one of the masses of flowers, impressive by its wild liberality as the grass or the fern, or the sky. All those afford a refreshing escape from the narrowness bounded by walls of living. To climb some narrower hillside path, and suddenly to find it opening on broad purpled upland spaces, is an emphatic experience, as though there it is, at the origin point of surprise. One such supreme experience have I had in the heart of home-leafing, and of arriving among new and unknown people. I took a road at breakfast and climbing there suddenly burst into view a new land vision. As if approaching an old side was reaching a new valley, beauty all around me lay before me, and I knew it was indeed the old scene, yet newly seen, so wonderfully different.

I have been told that the sentiment of climate is the sentiment of time. The sentiment of climate is the sentiment of time. The sentiment of climate is the sentiment of time.

and air, in which even the moon-land is rich.

So far, as man's protections are concerned, it is one of the underprivileged. It is a stranger to the finer flowers' heritage of care. In floriferous where they would succumb and conquer there, they would despair. Its beauty is the triumph of a forlorn hope. Having accustomed itself to endure hardness, it thrives in the teeth of the storm, and finds a kindly ministry in the tempest. That is one of Nature's ways, for frequently the finest results come of abandoning her children to her pitiless carelessness. Recently, in a garden in the north with many designed effects I noticed one undesignated effect surpassed them all. The garden was steeply buffeted, and over its side much dead rubbish had been thrown. Nature herself had become generous to "these wayside," and I shall not soon forget the unusual growth, especially of crystal-like ferns, cactuses, rhodod., and Nymphaea. These had found a richer, fuller growth. Everything here is often weak and distressed, but through weakness it gains strength and strength will feed the further growth of speed and power.

Alone, and the only health here
that consists of being rich in truth.
The richness of the world is the richness of the heart.

FATAL NIGHT RIDE.

DINERS THROWN INTO HARBOUR.

CORONER'S INQUIRY.

An inquiry was held yesterday, by Mr. R. A. D. Forrest into the circumstances attending the death of two members of a party of Chinese diners who were thrown into the harbour as a result of the car they had hired turning a somersault into the harbour.

The facts, as disclosed, were that the party had been partaking of dinner at the Kam Ling Restaurant, West Point, and had engaged the car outside to drive them to the Star Ferry wharf where their intention was to get a motor boat to Kowloon. This was shortly before 2 o'clock on the morning of June 12. The driver was driving very fast, at about 40 miles an hour, and collided with something near the Western Market, with the result that the car swerved and toppled over the Praya wall.

The two men who died as a result of the injuries received and immersion, were taken from the water shortly after the accident by a police launch near at hand. Sergt. Mitchell said that the car was visible when the launch got to the scene and a number of men could be seen lying in about six feet of water. They were all rescued.

Answering the jury, Sergt. Mitchell said that artificial respiration was not applied to either of the deceased as one could speak and did not appear to be in need of it whilst the people wanted to take the other to the Hospital immediately. Fearing that if he were to die witness might be held responsible, he acceded to their request. The others had attempted to revive the one who was suffering from the effects of the immersion but did not apply the method of artificial respiration correctly. The one who could speak was also taken to Hospital and died as a result of injuries he had received.

One of the witnesses, a life inquest described his rather remarkable escape. He said he saw that the car was going to topple over and jumped over the side (the car was closed in), receiving bruises only. He and other witnesses denied that they had urged the driver to go fast and said that they had remonstrated with him and asked him to slow down.

The driver of the car has not been found since the accident. The owner of the car said that he got it for the purpose of conveying customers to and from the Tung Tin Restaurant during the hours of 12 noon to 7 p.m. after which it was garaged. The driver had no right to take out the car after that hour and in this case, the driver, who was a substitute for the regular driver, must have been doing business on his own initiative. He had not the consent of the owner.

The case was adjourned until Wednesday.

MEMORIAL SERVICE.

The Canadian and American community were well represented at the service held yesterday in memory of the late Mr. J. B. Featherston, Canadian Commissioner of Immigration, who passed away on Wednesday afternoon. The Government was represented by Mr. J. A. B. Bullock.

The Rev. J. H. Johnston conducted the service at the Union Church, Kennedy Road, and in the course of a short address said that the late Mr. Featherston had not been long in the Colony, yet long enough to attach himself to a number of friends who loved and admired him. He was a faithful husband, a loving father, a loyal friend and a conscientious worker. Mr. Johnston spoke of the late Mr. Featherston's interest in Freemasonry, of his splendid character and spirit of charity; characteristics of Freemasonry, and expressed sympathy with the widow and daughter.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. A. Broadbent, Mrs. Marsh, Mr. and Mrs. Stout, Miss Clark, Messrs. G. M. Hensworth, E. E. L. Sturdee, T. C. Monaghan, T. Pyburn, W. T. Duley, J. M. Henderson, L. L. Sandbrook, W. R. Buckborough, M. B. Keenan, Frank. Dixon, D. Taylor, D. H. R. McMaster, Lee Yuk-yuen, etc.

Teleradio: "Ain't you heard of these wonderful latest developments in wireless?"

Antiradio: "What! These loud speakers? Why! Adam knew all about them. Didn't he make a splendid loud speaker out of one of his spare pillars?"

Adam: "Yes he did!"

Eve: "But he made one loud speaker out of one of his spare pillars!"

HOME CRICKET.

COUNTY CHAMPIONSHIP RESULTS.

MANY DRAWN MATCHES.

Rain prevented what might have been a very interesting programme in county cricket at Home from having any material bearing on the championship table. Nevertheless some of the rivals managed to finish off their arguments, thanks to bowlers coming forward. On the other hand, a few batsmen proved that runs can be obtained even when the wicket is sticky.

Hobbs is still keeping everybody in suspense, including Hong-kong enthusiasts who have made sporting wages as to whether "he will do it."

The results, as cabled, speak for themselves, and the table as posted up to date is also given below:

WANT TO FIGHT.

JACK DEMPSEY AND HIS CAREER.

TO MEET GENE TUNNEY?

Interviewed at Brighton on June 30, prior to his exhibition bout with Phil Scott there in aid of

JACK DEMPSEY.

Mr. Harry Preston's tournament for the Royal Sussex County Hospital, Jack Dempsey said regarding his future in the ring that he had arranged to fight Gene Tunney, in defence of the championship, on July 4 next year.

Gene Tunney.

For two years, he said, he had been practically idle for he had not met anybody serious in the ring.

The champion denied that he was going into film producing permanently, but admitted that several big companies were waiting him to do so. "I want some big fights first," he declared.

[Jack Dempsey has been visiting England and the Continent with his bride, formerly Miss Estelle Taylor, the film "star".]

Good British Boxer.

After the exhibition bout Dempsey said he was surprised at the way Phil Scott handled himself. Scott, who is one of Britain's best heavyweight boxers, was quick in his leads.

Dempsey said "He looks to be promising. In my opinion, he would beat most of the American heavies of to-day."

FRESH KILLED REINDEER FOR MEAT

THE ANTLEERS OF THE MALE REINDEER ARE OF IMPRESSIVE SIZE

THE REINDEER IS ONE OF THE GENTLEST OF DOMESTIC ANIMALS

SHOOTING REINDEER IN THE WILDERNESS

Beginning of a Great Industry Which Is Destined To Produce Delicious Food for Our Tables— Ten Million Reindeer in a Few Years— A New Civilization Created By a Domestic Animal.

(BY RENE BACHE.)

How would you like a reindeer steak?

"You are joking." "Not at all. Here it is on the bill of fare. It is delicious; I know because I ate one here the other day. Tastes just like venison. In fact, it is venison. Shall we have it with green peas and some French fried?"

One hears such orders given nowadays, occasionally, in first-class restaurants and hotels. In San Francisco and other west coast cities reindeer meat is commonly served— chops, steaks, roast, any cut in any way folks want it.

The industry has only made a beginning. Twenty years from now the Alaskan reindeer herds will be a very important source of meat supply for the whole United States. The female animals are never killed; they are too valuable for breeding. Of males there is always a superfluity, inasmuch as the reindeer is a polygamous beast, with a normal harem of twenty-five or so. It is the bucks that are slaughtered and sent to market. The reindeer is a big animal. Dressed, an average carcass weighs about one hundred and fifty pounds.

Rapid Breeders. The normal increase of a herd is about twenty-five per cent. per annum. Now, the spring fawning having taken place, there are nearly half a million reindeer in Alaska, more than two-thirds of them being owned by the native Eskimos.

The distribution of the Eskimo herds is benevolently controlled by the Federal Government, which is now on the point of adopting and carrying into effect a new plan whereby the natives, who already are shipping large quantities of reindeer meat to market, shall be enabled to conduct the business on a co-operative basis.

Uncle Sam acts as guardian of the Eskimos, through the Alaskan division of the Bureau of Education, and in each native village there is a government school teacher who is incidentally a sort of official advisor. The teachers, in their advisory capacity, are to help to establish a co-operative reindeer meat industry.

There are now large herds in the neighbourhood of nearly all the Eskimo settlements in western Alaska from the Arctic Ocean south to the Pacific, in the interior near Mount McKinley National Park, along the Alaskan Railroad, on Kodiak Island off the Gulf of Alaska, on the Alaskan Peninsula, and on islands of the Aleutian chain. Even the two little islands called the Pribilof, where the fur seals breed, in Bering Sea, have over four hundred reindeer.

Consumption By Natives. This wide distribution of the animals has been accomplished by wise and clever government management. It remains now to reorganize the reindeer industry in such a way as to make possible a more efficient handling of the increasing herds and a more profitable marketing of the surplus meat.

Much of the meat is necessarily required for consumption by the Eskimos themselves. For food and clothing, about 200,000 reindeer have been slaughtered by the natives since the first ones were brought to Alaska, in 1882.

Reindeer skin, with its long hair, is a most satisfactory material for winter clothing. The meat is in demand by whites as well as natives throughout the Territory. Whereby the quantity available for export is correspondingly lessened. But it will become steadily and rapidly greater, with increase of the herds.

Four years from now there will be at least a million reindeer in Alaska. Eight years hence there will be more than two millions. When there are ten millions, one-fifth of that number can be shipped out of the Territory annually without reducing the stock.

The commercial value of the Alaskan herds to-day is over $9,000,000—that is to say, $1,200,000 more than the United States originally paid for the acquisition of that Arctic province. An admirable investment the reindeer has proved.

Yet at the start the introduction of the animal into Alaska was an enterprise purely of benevolence. The Eskimos were starving to death. Ruthless hunting by white men had nearly exterminated the walrus, the whales, and other food animals in that region. Villages that had numbered thousands of inhabitants were reduced to hundreds. At Point Barrow, the northernmost point of Alaska, the death rate exceeded the birth rate fifteen to one. A town of two thousand on Schlemmer Inlet was whittled down to three families.

Dealing With The Chukchee.

Congress appropriated money to buy and distribute food. But that could do only temporary good. Somebody suggested the idea of importing reindeer from Siberia, and in 1892 one hundred and seventy-two of the animals were brought over by the revenue cutter Bear. They were purchased from Chukchi "deer men" for about ten dollars apiece, in barter goods.

On the other side of Bering Strait, in a region whose soil and climate much resembles the north-west coast of Alaska, dwell the Chukchee, peacefully disposed nomads, whose subsistence is furnished by herds of reindeer. To them, economically speaking, the reindeer represents the horse, the cow, the sheep and the goat, all put together. It is food, clothing, house, furniture, and transportation. The skin serves for clothes and bedding, tent-cover, harness, rope and fishing-lines. The sinews are dried and pounded into thread of great strength, which is woven into fish nets. The bones are soaked in seal oil and burned for fuel. Of the horns various implements are made, as well as sleds and weapons of the chase. The female animal yields only a cupful of milk at a milking, but the fluid is so rich that it needs to be diluted with a quart of water to render it potable. A reindeer will draw a sled swiftly one hundred and fifty miles a day over snow and ice.

The Chukchee had long made a business of barter with Eskimos and white people across the strait, exchanging reindeer skins for seal oil, tobacco, powder and shot and flour. Thus there was no trouble in negotiating with them for the animals desired, though they at first insisted upon whisky, which the commander of the Bear refused to supply. Sixteen reindeer, hoisted with running tackle aboard the ship, made up the first consignment.

Eskimo Apprentices. In 1892 and the two following years a total of 1,280 reindeer were fetched to Alaska. In 1911 there were 35,529 in the Territory. A few expert Chukchi deer men were brought over to take care of the herds and instruct the Eskimos in the art. Later, a number of Lapys were imported from Lapland for that purpose, and a system was developed under which Eskimo youths served three years as apprentices, each one, at the end of his term, receiving in lieu of pay ten reindeer, with which to start a herd of his own.

It is by this wise method that the reindeer industry in Alaska has been developed, with much attention paid to the distribution of the animals as widely as possible. There are in the Territory 400,000 square miles admirably adapted for rearing and herding them, an area equal to that of the New England and Middle States combined. In the summer time they feed mostly on the young shoots of willow and birch trees; in winter their main source of subsistence is "reindeer moss" and other lichens, which they dig up with their hoofs from under the snow.

Under the system here described, each Eskimo owner of reindeer has his mark on the ears of all the animals that belong to him. It is a registered mark, and nobody else is lawfully entitled to use it. The Government gives it to him as a token of title. But he may, if he chooses, dispose of his mark to another owner.

How Congress Was Persuaded. Nothing that is radically new escapes ridicule. Thus, when the plan to introduce reindeer into Alaska was originally proposed, it was derisively received. Most people thought it a joke, and many newspapers poked editorial fun at it. On the whole, it is surprising that Congress was persuaded to give the money to carry it out.

But there was one grim fact that stared Congress in the face. The Eskimos were unquestionably starving, their unfortunate condition being largely due to the salmon canneries, which had made many rivers barren of fish. To feed them, annual appropriations would be necessary for a period to which there seemed to be no limit. Advocates of the project urged that reindeer would afford, at small expense, a permanent settlement of the problem. Thus the enterprise was set on foot.

The Alaskan Eskimo nowadays, instead of spending his days fishing or watching a hole in the ice for a seal to pop up, is a deer man, owning or cornered in the management of a herd. The food question no longer troubles him. He lives in a comfortable modern house in a village that has paved streets, lighted with electricity. The local co-operative store keeps in stock whatever he requires to supply his needs. He even has the radio.

Thanks, all of this, to the reindeer which has uplifted the Eskimo of Alaska from a condition of semi-savagery and desperate want to a decent level of civilization and complete economic security. It has transformed them from wild hunters into an industrial people, with plenty to eat, good clothes to wear, and swift vehicles to which to ride.

The Famous Creator of Fashions

THE COMBINATION of two fabrics has appeared among the more smartly dressed women off and on during the Summer, and now this fetching fashion bursts upon us as an established mode.

So effective is the use of black and white crepe that I have had recurring calls for costumes which combined these two mediums. The drawings on this page are reproductions of the last four costumes I have designed.

The smartly dressed woman never grows tired of the combination of black and white. She favors it in outfits of the type shown here, and she likes it in the tiny checks which are seen less often. The white dress with fine pipings of black, or the black frock with fine white pipings, are expressions of the favor accorded this striking contrast.

The drawings speak for themselves, so there is really little need to go into explicit descriptions. Where the costume is an ensemble, the upper part of the frock is usually white crepe, with the lower portion of the dress black satin, and the short coat of black satin lined with the crepe.

The ensemble of the large figure is most effective, with the deep V slit in its black satin coat to reveal the white beneath, and the wide white crepe scarf striped with applied bands of the black satin.

The chic little costume at the right is so smart in the design of its simple coat and frock that anyone would do well to have the same model copied later on, in Fall materials. Jersey or kasha, for instance, in tan and brown would make a most effective little suit to be worn during the first days of early Autumn.

The vogue for black and white is present at all times of day. Costumes in these two colors are worn for afternoon dress occasions, and the morning sports affairs exploit black and white in linen, crepe or flannel, more often than any other combination.

For evening, the vogue for bi-color chiffon and crepe frocks again favors black and white as its most attractive interpretation. For instance, at a recent opening of one of the smartest New York supper clubs, there was an extremely well-dressed gathering which included various actresses of stage and screen fame. Among them, the black and white chiffon dance frock was the most outstanding fashion of the evening. At the same time, the models exploiting this bi-color mode differed sufficiently in line and treatment so that no two of them were alike. For instance, a dashing little screen favorite appeared in a dress with straight upper section of white chiffon, and an extra full founce from the knees all of black chiffon. With this she selected white stockings and white satin slippers. The only note of color was a tiny pink rose tucked in her dark hair, which was rolled low at the back of her neck. The effect was very striking indeed.

Another black and white chiffon had its décolleté, long-sleeved bodice made of white and this bodice extended down onto the very full black skirt in allover points. The skirt beneath was white, and the entire bodice was dotted with piped petals of white chiffon. Another smart black chiffon was trimmed all over with vertical rows of tiny white bead fringe, the rows spaced only about two inches apart.

Most of these dance frocks are accompanied by a pair of slippers, and stockings. This gives a more Summer effect to the costumes. And I always prefer slippers of solid color, either black or white, with the costume which exploits a combination.

For wear with plain color frocks, there are very striking slippers of black and white. Sometimes these are of plain satin, as white, with bold black satin bands appearing over the white. Again, the vogue for hand-painted comes into play, in smaller slippers with black and white designs, or black slippers with white designs traced over the instep.

The Black Satin Suit (at the Right) Is Worn with a White Crepe Blouse and Has White Trimming on Its Coat.

A very good looking street slipper from the French is of black patent leather with a white design outlined in red traced over its surface.

Speaking of combinations, the use of two contrasting fabrics promises to play a more important part in fashions with the opening of Fall. Frocks and coats from the French openings are prone to combine velvet and taffeta, or kasha and satin, and this tendency will doubtless become more prominent as the season advances.

At present, contrasting materials are favored in blouse and skirt ensembles, with very good effect. For instance, gray crepe satin makes a very attractive blouse, to be worn with a gray georgette skirt which achieves its fulness by a series of inverted pleats across the front. Another smart Jaquette of black velvet is worn with a white slip that furnishes the pleated skirt and also acts as a vestee.

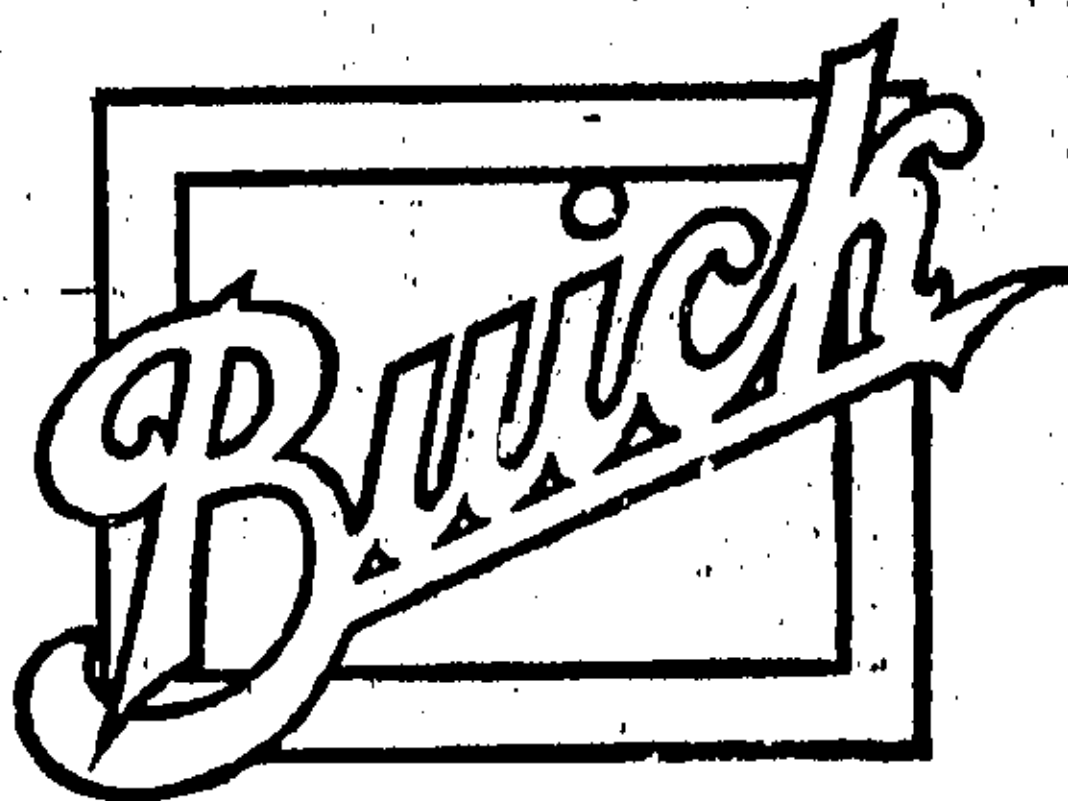

Summer underthings also show favor for black and white in chiffon sets which include nightgown, combination and slip. The smart shops which sell underthings exclusively are featuring window displays of these cool-looking chiffon underthings. The nightgowns are often made with little black chiffon yokes that extend up over either shoulder in slender points, with the rest of the gown of pleated white chiffon. The combinations follow this same treatment, with the black yokes giving a high-waisted effect. The line between the yokes and lower combination is marked by insertion carrying white satin ribbons. The slips which go with these sets are usually of white chiffon piped in narrow black chiffon.

The White Crepe Frock (Above) Is Worn with a Black Satin Coat Lined to Match. This Could Be Copied in Two Tones of Jersey for Fall.

Silk frocks with inset vests of white wash material are finding favor with smart women.

Green Pipes.

As a reprisal for the pink, puce, heliotrope, jule, and violet "Oxford bugs," a firm of pipe manufacturers has put on the market a green briar pipe (says the "Daily News.") The wood is treated with some iron preparation, which is said to make it smoke very sweetly.

Short Electric Waves.

With the aid of very small Eertz oscillators electric waves of only 0.22 mm. length have been produced which overlap the extreme infra-red rays of wave-length 424 u (or 0.424 mm.) by an octave. The gap between long light waves and short electric waves has thus been bridged over. The announcement of this achievement was to have been made last summer in the National Academy of Sciences, Washington, by Professor E. P. Nichols, famous for his determination of the radiation pressure of light in conjunction with Professor G. P. Hall in 1903 (which formed the first determination by Lebedew); but Professor Nichols died on the platform. The experiments were described by his colleague, Dr. J. D. Tsur, in the Astrophysical Journal of January. The Eertz oscillator consisted of two tungsten wires, 0.1 mm. in diameter, projecting 0.1 mm. from the glass tubes. The waves produced had a length of 0.22 mm., and one of the overtones measured had a wave-length of 0.22 mm. These waves passed through a quartz plate and a paraffin lens to an interferometer (mirrors or an echelon built up of brass plates piled upon one another in steps) and further to a receiver, a very fine platinum wire or a film of platinum, to measure the energy radiated in a Hertz radiometer. In other experiments, infra-red mercury-ray waves of wave-length 0.42 mm. were measured, slightly longer than those previously determined by Rubens and Hollnagel; the determination of still longer mercury waves of 0.685 mm. was not quite certain, both figures would be in agreement with the quantum theory.

Double Names.

It is becoming a favourite custom to address a child by two names instead of one (observes a "Star" writer). The same nursery will contain a Michael John, a Mary Jane, and a Julie Ann. The North Country has always been rather a stekler for this, and most Lancashire families seem to own "Our John-Henry" and "Our Sue-Anne." Nicknames and abbreviations to-day are going out, and Jackys and Mollies and Jimmys have quite gone out of date. I even heard of one mother who requested that "Thomas" should on no account be allowed to lapse at school into "Tommy."

A Yearly Comedy.

The annual congress of dancing masters, I see, has met at Paris to discuss how London and Paris and the rest of the world are to dance next winter (says an "Evening Standard" writer). For a short time, I suppose, we shall learn what they have decided. I venture to predict that they will decide to abolish something and to substitute something else in its place. And I predict also that the world of those who dance will continue to go round and round just as before, as if the congress had never existed. One would, however, miss this yearly comedy if it were to cease. It emphasises two things, the first, that people dance because they like it; and the second, that the modern dance, whatever name it may go by, is an extraordinarily flexible and varied thing by means of which the dancers may express their response to the music and their feelings of the moment just as it pleases them.

Steel and Housing.

It is interesting and instructive to compare the strength of steel with that of other materials, and when this is done it is seen that, weight for weight, steel is thirty-four times as strong as brickwork, fourteen times as strong as plain concrete, twelve times as strong as masonry, and eight times as strong as reinforced concrete. If the comparison be made on the basis of area for area, the factor for brickwork is 160, for plain concrete 64, for masonry 40, and for reinforced concrete 26. This marked superiority of steel has far-reaching economic results. Rapidity of erection is an obvious advantage to be gained from the adoption of steel-framed construction in housing, and in many instances this point alone is sufficient to make out steel as the only possible material for the problem in hand. No obvious is this superiority that there is no need to labour it, but three recent achievements may be quoted as typical examples. In the first instance a steel bridge having twenty-two main girders was erected over a railway line in the short space of five hours; in the second, the steel framing of a five-story building comprising 1,000 tons of sections was completed in nine weeks; and finally another building, the framing of which contained 400 tons of steel, was erected in only four weeks. Steel construction, therefore, allows building operations to be completed in the minimum time, and the site to be occupied and usefully employed at the earliest possible moment.

French Memories of Lord Ypres.

I have just been reading in that entertaining and exceedingly well-informed paper, the "Cris de Paris," an article which I make bold to quote (says an "Evening Standard" writer). France, says the "Cris de Paris," was Field-marshal French's chosen country. He had a suite of rooms at the Hotel Crillon, and every night he dined in a well-known restaurant, where he had a corner always to himself, and which he used to leave at ten o'clock, going away on foot smoking his pipe. He had, says the "Cris de Paris," two admirations: the Prince of Wales and Marshal Joffre. On the morning of the Battle of the Marne he is reported as saying: "I saw Joffre drinking peacefully a cup of chocolate. I was anxious and nearly trembling. Joffre soothed me down. Everything is ready, he said, and he sipped his chocolate. At that moment I understood that a Frenchman could be more phlegmatic than an Englishman, and I admired the French nation."

Thirty persons were injured, some seriously, as a result of hoodlums attacking a procession of National Congress supporters on the eve of further city municipal elections. The hoodlums are stated to have used sticks, crowbars and mineral water bottles.

Stone-throwing and rowdiness were previously reported at some election meetings of the Congress party, following the defeat of all four non-Brahmin candidates by members of the Congress party last week.

The police made seven arrests.

CORRESPONDENCE.

MURDER TRIAL.

(To the Editor of the China Mail.)

Sir—Arising out of the two murder trials in the Supreme Court this week, it strikes me as rather astonishing to find that very little or no interest is being taken by the public when these criminal trials come up for judgment. I was a spectator in both of the trials and noted that in the first case which two Indian guards stood their trial for the murder of another guard, there was only a fair number of their class as spectators, while in the second case when a Chinese stood his trial for the murder of an Indian policeman, neither Chinese nor Indians were in Court at all, those present were only witnesses and Police officers. I raise this matter because there is importance attached as far as our Jury System is concerned. I would strongly advise those who are Jurors and especially those who have not been called for at any time, that they should not ignore the seriousness of their duty. They must not wait till called to know the procedure of their duty in Court. A man cannot possibly claim that he knows everything, and here I think I am in a safe position to refer to that well-known old saying that "a little knowledge is a dangerous thing," and my sympathy will not be extended to those who have no knowledge at all of a subject when full liberty is at their disposal to acquaint themselves of it. I was more than satisfied to find that in both of the trials the foreman of the jury in each case asked questions. In my opinion, I should say that it is indeed essential, as after all a Jury has as much right as the presiding judge to cross-examine when evidence is not satisfying. When I raised the question of Jury Reform in your columns of last year, you also had remarks made on the subject and you referred to the utter silence of jurymen during proceedings, but it is now pleasing to note that a fault has been corrected and it is to be hoped that for the sake of upholding the true characteristics of British law and order, a foreman of jury should not fail to ask questions when the duty calls. There is another question which I should like to take up and that is the privilege that should be accorded to prisoners on trial—a seat in the dock even during the proceedings. The Court does not sit for a matter of an hour or two and to see a prisoner standing up all the while for days does arouse my sympathy, if not others. We know that mercy is and it is only right that we should act upon it. Even God's mercy is solicited by the Judge for a murderer. That can rightly be said of what the true version of British Justice is. Jurors, see that the right course is to be taken!

Yours, etc.,

JUSTICE.

Hongkong, August 13.

MISSING STEAMER.

(To the Editor of the China Mail.)

Sir—In to-night's news there is an account of the presumed loss of a local Coast boat—which may or may not be accurate.

I am more concerned, however, with the fact that there is also included a statement which purports to give the names of the Europeans on board the vessel at the time of her presumed loss.

This list of names is very inaccurate, a fact which a moment's search through the records at the Shipping Office—open to anyone who takes the trouble to go there—would at once have revealed.

It is possible that copies of the paper in which this list appears, might be sent as far as England, Australia, or elsewhere, where friends or relations may have their attention called to the paragraph in question—with consequences I need not enlarge on. I wish to protest most strongly against the carelessness which allows such a statement to appear in print without proper verification. It is typical of the slipshod way in which the whole subject of shipping is dealt with in this, the reputed fourth shipping port in the world.

Yours, etc.,
